- 1. Meet with Green County Humane Society representatives to discuss current agreement and possible future agreements and possibly take action

Discussion took place. Alderperson Ingwell went over statistics from other cities regarding how many stray dogs are picked up every year. According to John Baumann, the new building for the humane society will most likely not be ready in 2011. Paul Barrett said they would like the city to look at the contract in regards to cost per animal. All other cities in Green County, other than the City of Monroe, are covered under the Green County contract. Paul Barrett said that some of the wording in the contract needs to be looked at. Mayor Ross asked the Humane Society reps to propose new language and how much money they need per animal and get it to us in about 30 days. Police Chief Kelley asked them to look forward to when they have their new building and what they are proposing for changes. Mike Rivers said he is concerned about the future and would like an idea of what the Humane Society will be looking for in the future. Steve Jacobson said that a future agreement will just be for services.
